CAHI Spring Health Policy Roundtable

Moving Toward Transparency

April 11, 2007

9:00a.m. – 11:30a.m.

The Hotel Washington

The consumer driven health care movement is exploding, as millions of Americans switch to plans with higher deductibles along with Health Savings Accounts or Health Reimbursement Arrangements. Because more people are controlling more of their health care dollars, they are demanding more information about the price and quality of available products and services. And while the industry is moving slowly in responding to the growing demand for more transparency, it is responding.

On April 11, the Council for Affordable Health Insurance (CAHI) and Consumers for Health Care Choices are bringing together several organizations that are leading the way in developing and promoting price transparency in the health care system. Among those joining us to discuss their efforts and answer questions will be: Aetna, HCA, HealthMarkets and the Wisconsin Hospital Association.

Please join us at the Hotel Washington for a roundtable discussion of price transparency, where we are and what needs to be done.
